The biggest source of population information on World of Warcraft, has been RealmPop.com for years. They currently report 44 million characters on US realms, and 41 million on EU realms. Be aware though, that: They only get data for characters that a) have posted an item in the auction house at any time, or b) have joined a guild with a member that posted an item in the auction house at any time.

Cons - No culture. Very overwhelming feeling that you are being micro-managed - In order to have an "unplanned" work from home day - you need to ask for approval from your department head, send the approval from your department head to HR for their approval, then take the approval from your department head and the approval from HR and send that for approval from the billing department.
