BEST ANSWER: Recovery time is a little hard to answer because it depends on the conditions and tool you are using. I bought this compressor to use mainly in my woodworking shop and in the house. I use it primarily for nail and staple guns and for their use it works very well because only momentary bursts of air are required and you can keep working even if the compressor is running to build ...

The essential aspect of surface-supplied diving is that breathing gas is supplied from the surface, either from a specialized diving compressor, high-pressure cylinders, or both. In commercial and military surface-supplied diving, a backup source of breathing gas should always be present in case the primary supply fails.
