High Performance Liquid Chromatography Fundamental

This course has been designed for novice HPLC users and those who have some experience of running HPLC methods. Although the main focus will be on the fundamental theory of HPLC we will discuss slightly more advanced topics in order to allow you to progress easily to the next, more advanced stage in your HPLC training.

Chromatography is a laboratory technique for the separation of a mixture. The mixture is dissolved in a fluid called the mobile phase, which carries it through a structure holding another material called the stationary phase. The various constituents of the mixture travel at different speeds, causing them to separate.

1. Introduction. The history of liquid chromatography-mass spectrometry coupling (LC MS) using EI is rich in clever and elaborate methods, but many have never achieved commercialization [, , , , , , , , , , , , , ,].The liquid flow exiting the chromatographic column represents an enormous challenge when it is admitted to the low-pressure environment of a mass spectrometer.

A chromatography detector is a device used in gas chromatography (GC) or liquid chromatography (LC) to detect components of the mixture being eluted off the chromatography column. There are two general types of detectors: destructive and non-destructive. The destructive detectors perform continuous transformation of the column effluent (burning, evaporation or mixing with reagents) with ...
